

ABSTRACT

When a seal-like recording medium with a built-in memory that stores information specifying a communicatee is placed in the close proximity of a medium read/write unit of a communication terminal apparatus and a button is operated, information (operator in case of seal-like medium, and telephone number in case of seal-like medium) stored in the seal-like medium is read out.

0901010303